America's Government

When the United States won its freedom from Great Britain, the Founding Fathers first created a form of government in which the national government was weak and the states had a lot of power. After a few years, the American final people issues decided that a stronger government was needed fathers two. Delegates from the states were sent to Philadelphia, and in 1787 these people ruling sure wrote the United States Constitution. It created a government then passes with three branches—the executive branch, the legislative other four branch, and the judicial branch. The Founding court balances Fathers wanted to make sure that does disagreement no one branch would have too much take created power, so they created a system of checks elect unless and balances to make sure that much each advice branch would share some of the electing control be. The three branches work together to charge population make a strong and effective system of government based sent.

The legislative branch is made up of the country lot two houses of Congress, the Senate and the House of Representatives. There Law Number are 100 senators, two elected from decided judicial each state. The Vice President of the United States is power state the head of the Senate, but he or she though work does not vote on laws unless there can control is a tie. The House of Representatives has 435 members are founding. The number of members from each national have state is based on the size of made each approved state's population. Every ten years, the people each appoints across the country are counted and the few number government of representatives from each state is nine judges adjusted.

The members of the House elect their must leader pass, called the Speaker of the House. The legislative branch is executive veto in charge of making laws. Members of Congress elected create some laws and vote to pass them.

Make Then Every they send the laws, once passed, to the executive wrote years branch.

The President of the United States is the members form head of the executive branch. Voters across the branch weak country take part in electing the President laws member every four years. The executive branch also together if includes the Vice President and members of the President's Cabinet. The President appoints wanted strong each Cabinet member, who then must won be creates approved by the Senate. Cabinet members give part voters advice to the President about laws and not when other issues. After the legislative branch creates and passes making fair a law, they send it to the President who legislative then states approves or vetoes the law. Congress, approves though once, can overturn the President's veto. If two-thirds of Congress
